

What does Joe Biden want to do for the economy?

The election is over. Now governing begins. As the world works to overcome Covid, economic power ebbs and flow globally, technology disrupts what we do and how we work, and the climate continues to change, the decisions the next administration makes will have a major influence on our progress, and, especially, on our economic well-being. What are the Biden's administration priorities? How will Congress react to them?

Join a special AmCham intelligence session to debate the shape of American economic policy over the next four years with former Speaker of House John Boehner and former Chair of the House Democratic Caucus Joe Crowley.

John Boehner, Senior Strategic Advisor, Squire Patton Boggs – 53rd Speaker of the US House of Representatives (Republican)

Joe Crowley, Senior Policy Advisor, Squire Patton Boggs – Former US Congressman for New York and former Chairman of the House Democratic Caucus (Democrat)

In cooperation with

SQUIRE
PATTON BOGGS

December 7, 430-530 pm. Online. Register